A Court That Means Business: New Film Highlights New York Commercial Division's Capabilities and Economic Impact

A new film featuring Chief Legal Officers from 13 major corporations, including Verizon, Goldman Sachs, Pfizer, Blackstone, Chubb, and Marsh McLennan, highlights the vital role of the Commercial Division of the New York State Supreme Court. Also appearing are New York's Chief Judge Rowan D. Wilson, Chief Administrative Judge Joseph A. Zayas, business leaders, top attorneys, and justices of the Commercial and Appellate Divisions.

Now available to view at <https://vimeo.com/1060574090/e2635bcfaf>, the film explores how the Commercial Division has made business litigation in New York more efficient, cost-effective, and predictable—helping attract and retain businesses across the state.

As an international leader in the development of business courts, the Commercial Division provides significant economic benefits to New York by fostering a more hospitable environment for commerce, generating tax revenue, and supporting job creation.

The film was produced entirely with private funds.
